Professor Chang's very thoughtful and impressively researched study of cybercrime in the greater china region is an invaluable contribution to the information and analyses available in this area it not only provides important and heretofore unavailable data about the incidence and nature of cybercrime in this region it also offers insightful suggestions into how this problem can most effectively be controlled it belongs in the library of anyone interested in this area

Susan Brenner University of Dayton US East Asia is a heartland of the variegated scams of the cybercrime problem Yao Chung Chang's book is an innovative application of routine activity theory and regulatory theory to cybercrime prevention across the cybergulf between china and taiwan the long march through the scams and across the taiwan strait is fascinating Chang leads us to ponder a wiki cybercrime prevention strategy that might work in such treacherous waters

John Braithwaite Australian National University Cybercriminals exploit weaknesses in cross border crime cooperation and this is aptly illustrated in the context of relations between taiwan and the people's republic of china Chang's book shows that even in the climate of mistrust that prevails basic forms of cross border police cooperation can be achieved pragmatism and professional interest in what helps to track elusive computer hackers who have driven a massive surge in the application of malware as 'Crimeware' make good grounds for common cause this book provides a valuable example of what can be achieved even in the most unpromising of mutual legal assistance situations and opens up for readers the problems and issues confronted by chinese cyber police

Roderic Broadhurst Australian National University Very rarely do you read books that impress these days but for me cybercrime in the greater china region was one of them Dr Chang is one of a number of young and exciting international academics who are exploring previously uncharted territory in their quest for new understandings about cybercrime in his book Dr Chang manages to locate a global policing problem within the sometimes tense political and cultural constraints of regional policing for me Professor Grabosky neatly sums up the strengths of the book in his foreword I can only endorse them

David S Wall University College Durham University UK Lennon's research is an important contribution to the current limited understanding of the cybercrimes and related laws regulations and incident reporting issues across the straits between the two major economies in the asia region a well researched book and highly informative with practical suggestions for enhancing visibility and cooperation to improve the overall state of cybersecurity in the region especially between the two economies. Meng chow kang cisco systems china cybercrime is a worldwide problem of rapidly increasing magnitude and of the countries in the asia pacific region taiwan and china are suffering most. This timely book discusses the extent and nature of cybercrime in and between taiwan and china focussing especially on the prevalence of botnets, collections of computers that have been compromised and used for malicious purposes. The book uses routine activity theory to analyse chinese and taiwanese legal responses to cybercrime and reviews mutual assistance between the two countries as well as discussing third party cooperation to prevent the spread of cybercrime. The book argues the case for a 'wiki' approach to cybercrime and a feasible pre warning system. Learning from lessons in infectious disease prevention and from aviation safety reporting, cybercrime in the greater china region proposes a feasible information security incident reporting and response system. Academics, government agency workers, policymakers and those in the information security or legal compliance divisions in public and private sectors will find much to interest them in this timely study.

Offering a unique collection of tips, tools and scripts for Mac OS X, this book brings together real world hands on information from various quarters not easily found elsewhere.

Ingin tahu kepribadian dirimu so let take this book

Everyone likes Humaira Hani Khan. She's easy going and one of the most popular girls at school. But when she comes out to her friends as bisexual, they invalidate her identity saying she can't be bi if she's only dated guys. Panicked, Hani blurts out that she's in a relationship with a girl. Her friends absolutely hate Ishita. Ishu Dey, Ishu is the complete opposite of Hani. She's an academic overachiever who hopes that becoming head girl will set her on the right track for college. But Ishita agrees to help Hani if Hani will help her become more popular so that she stands a chance of being elected head girl. Despite their mutually beneficial pact, they start developing real feelings for each other. But relationships are complicated and some people will do anything to stop two Bengali girls from achieving happily ever after.

There was a hum of excitement. Flags flickered in the breeze as Maggie's heart danced with delight. This is a very special day. Her mother said Maggie holds tight to her mother as they await the long anticipated apology to show a willingness to reconcile the past for future generations. In the excitement of the crowd, Maggie loses touch of her mother's hand as is lost in a time long ago and not so long ago children were taken from their parents, their sorrow echoing across the land as the prime minister s speech unfolds maggie is reunited with her mother but the faces and memories of the stolen generation are all around them two stories entwine in this captivating retelling of the momentous day when the then prime minister of australia kevin rudd acknowledged the sorrows of past and said sorry to the generation of children who were taken from their homes the book includes a foreword from lee joachim chair of rumbalara aboriginal cooperative and director of research and development for yorta yorta nation aboriginal corporation an examination of how technological failures defined nature and national identity in cold war canada throughout the modern period nations defined themselves through the relationship between nature and machines many cast themselves as a triumph of technology over the forces of climate geography and environment

some however crafted a powerful alternative identity they defined themselves not through the triumph of machines over nature but through technological failures and the distinctive natural orders that caused them in the unreliable nation edward jones imhotep examines one instance in this larger history the cold war era project to extend reliable radio communications to the remote and strategically sensitive canadian north he argues that particularly at moments when countries viewed themselves as marginal or threatened the identity of the modern nation emerged as a scientifically articulated relationship between distinctive natural phenomena and the problematic behaviors of complex groups of machines drawing on previously unpublished archival documents and recently declassified materials jones imhotep shows how canadian defense scientists elaborated a distinctive northern natural order of violent ionospheric storms and auroral displays and linked it to a machinic order of severe and widespread radio disruptions throughout the country tracking their efforts through scientific images experimental satellites clandestine maps and machine architectures he argues that these scientists naturalized canada's technological vulnerabilities as part of a program to reimagine the postwar nation the real and potential failures of machines came to define canada its hostile northern nature its cultural anxieties and its geo political vulnerabilities during the early cold war jones imhotep's study illustrates the surprising role of technological failures in shaping contemporary understandings of both nature and nation

expanding upon the 2017 radio 4 series britain's black past this book presents those stories and analyses through the lens of a recovered past even those who may be familiar with some of the materials will find much that they had not previously known and will be introduced to people places and stories brought to light by new research in a time of international racial unrest and migration it is important not to lose sight of similar situations that took place in an earlier time in chapters written by scholars artists and independent researchers readers will learn of an early musician the sales of slaves in scotland the grave now a shrine of a black enslaved boy left to die in morecombe bay of a country estate owned by a mixed race slave owner and of the two strikingly different people who lived in a bristol house that is now a museum black sailors political activists memoirists appear in these pages but the book also re examines living history in the form of modern plays television programmes and genealogical sleuthing through them britain's black past is not only presented anew but shown to be very much alive in our own time
